ARRIFLEX SERVES TWA

TRANS WORLD AIRLINES

writes MR. J. G. ARMSTRONG, SUPERVISOR VISUAL AIDS, Flight Training Center, Trans World Airlines, Kansas City, Mo:

"...I have used the Arriflex before, and found it to be exactly what I needed to produce the movies which we use in training our pilots. Our pictures are taken with the Arriflex mounted so as to shoot out of the first officer's forward windshield panel. Due to the fact that a Connie cockpit has practically no room overhead, the Arriflex is mounted upside down and is operated in reverse. A Film-orama anamorphic lens is mounted ahead of an Arriflex 28mm lens.

We have found that the Arriflex's registration pin eliminates any difficulties which might result from the gravity sensitivity of the camera's moving elements in flight. This is important since the camera is subject to varying forces in flight, especially at the low levels we use for photographing instrument approaches to airports..."

Only the Arriflex 16 has the features which make this camera so valuable to TWA: Light weight and compact, 400 ft. magazines, registration pin film transport, reverse filming, electric motor drive and last but not least, mirror-reflex shutter (not a beam splitter) for through-the-lens focusing and viewing.

The Arriflex can serve you better, too! Fill out and mail coupon for detailed information.
