

Video Cartridge, Cassette and Disc Player Systems

Proceedings of the Symposium

OCTOBER 7 AND 8, 1971, MONTREAL

Stanley F. Quinn, Chairman

From the Foreword: It was the purpose in organizing the Symposium to examine the new technology of videoplayer systems and to consider the likely impact on education, industry and the home. It was hoped to attract not only engineers but also educators and other professionals interested in this new medium of communication. There were four sessions: Perspective Session, in which particular emphasis was placed on the social and economic aspect of the new technology; Utilization Session, in which plans and experience of prospective users were outlined; and two Technical Sessions, which provided a review of the technology of storing audio-video information and new information about videoplayer systems. The matter of the multiplicity of systems standards received particular attention in several of the papers on both days.

CONTENTS

PERFORMANCE: SPECTRA SONICS design and quality control assures undistorted reproduction. Empirical data conclusively confirms that noise, frequency response, distortion, square wave response, peak overload and phase distortion specifications for SPECTRA SONICS control consoles are goals as yet unattained by other manufacturers of audio products.

DEPENDABILITY: SPECTRA SONICS consoles operate reliably, consistently and assure the maximum production time for the highest investment return.

A SPECTRA SONICS audio control console can be built to your special requirements, at competitive production prices.

Measure the performance of your console, compare it with SPECTRA SONICS specifications. For data on SPECTRA SONICS consoles or other quality audio products, write or call:

OUR "HARD FRONT" MAKES IT EASY . . .

for the Arri 35 to accept reflexed BNC-mount lenses.

For a production company using both BNC and Arri 35 cameras, this eliminates the costly duplication of lenses, and assures that all scenes will intercut consistently since they would all be shot with the same set of lenses. The new Cinema Products designed "Hard Front" for the Arri 35 incorporates a BNC mount which eliminates the need to remount reflexed BNC lenses to a smaller diameter, or to change the mount on the BNC. The "Hard Front" also makes it possible for the Arri 35 (normally light-cone limited to f1.4) to accept the new faster lenses which require a larger diameter mount. In addition, with a massive, positive locking BNC mount, even the heaviest lenses will seat securely on the Arri 35.

LUME-X XENON LAMP

The 35mm Lume-X, adaptable to all theatre automation systems, utilizes a precision made deep metal reflector and horizontally mounted bulb for maximum light intensity. The Lume-X is powered by a solid state, current regulated, power supply with infinite current adjustment possible within an operating range of 40 to 75 amperes. Controls for the power supply, which operates on 115 volts, are on the lamphouse.

The lamphouse is designed to fit any standard projector base, and the stack will adapt to any standard exhaust system. All internal electrical components are easily replaceable. Bulb is inserted through the top of the lamphouse without disturbing alignment. A trouble-free igniter gives instantaneous ignition.

The lamphouse measures 22^{1/2}" long, by 12^{1/2}" wide and 16" high including mounting brackets. The power supply is 20^{1/2}" long, 18" wide and 8^{3/4}" high. The fan cooled power supply can be mounted vertically or horizontally.

Models for 16mm projection also available. Write or phone for complete information.
