animals can't talk...

Mark and Marty Stouffer tell their story . . . with Arriflex.

"Most animals and birds have very acute hearing. The slightest sound can send them running..." The Stouffers speak from experience. Award-winning wildlife filmmakers, their latest TV network special, "At The Crossroads," tells of animals on the verge of extinction.

"Being endangered species," says Mark, "our subjects are very elusive. We can wait in a blind for weeks before getting a shot."

"Too many 'one chance' wildlife scenes have been ruined by camera noise, but our Arri BL has solved that problem. When you're shooting wildlife, there are too many other problems to have to worry about the camera."

Through their films, the Stouffers have reached many millions of people. Animals can't talk — but with help from the Stouffers . . . and Arriflex . . . they can get their message out.

THE END OF HALF YOUR LIGHTING PROBLEMS.

If you had to pick one aspect of filmmaking that has necessitated the development of the greatest variety of equipment, you'd have to pick lighting. Every scene, every shot, every studio, every location, every product, virtually every face requires its own individual lighting solution. You'll be glad to know that at Camera Mart we stock every one of those solutions. From the biggest Maxi-Brute array to the most portable sun gun. For rent of sale. Lights that work from any source, 220-volt AC to 30-volt battery. Colortrans, Moles, Lowels and practically every other name brand. Plus every accessory imaginable: snoots, scrims, silks, reflectors, flags, stands and every other piece of gaffer equipment—right down to tape.

THE END OF THE OTHER HALF.

But as we're so fond of saying, the right equipment is only half the solution. Expertise is the other half. And at Camera Mart, our people don't just sell and rent lighting equipment. They are, to a man and Ms., bona fide lighting consultants, capable, for instance, of designing a lighting package for you that will do more than you expected for less than you expected to spend. We can show you how to get more candlepower from less electrical power (particularly important on location). Or how to stow 5,000 watts in an attache case that'll fit nicely under an airline seat. We'll even suggest how many spares to take along. In short, when it comes to lighting, we're a real bunch of know-it-alls. And since we also have it all, why bother going elsewhere?

CAMERA MART 456 West 55 Street New York, N.Y. 10019

You make sense. Tell me more about how Camera Mart can solve both halves of my lighting problems.

TAKE ME FOR A RIDE!

No, not the girl — the new Swintek "Hitchhiker" Cordless Microphone System she's holding in her hand. Like its big brothers, the Swintek Mark III and Mark IV, the "Hitchhiker" incorporates the latest highband VHF crystal controlled transmitter and an exclusive crystal front end receiver.*

The "Hitchhiker" is designed to ride on the side of most professional single system cameras, including the CP-16A, General and Frezzolini. It may also be attached to your Nagra recorder or your MA-11 amplifier and adds only 3/4" in width and 15 1/2 ounces in weight.

The "Hitchhiker" is engineered to draw its power (less than 60 milliamps) from your camera or recorder, thus eliminating the need for a receiver power supply. It also will operate from any external DC source from 12 to 30 volts or from an accessory AC base to which it may be attached. A DC base and a power supply to fit your pocket are additional options to insure you will never be without power.

The "Hitchhiker" will pay for its ride with the highest fidelity cordless sound you've ever recorded.

And, don't forget, in addition to the "Hitchhiker," there is a Swintek cordless microphone system to fit your specific needs. Write today for information.

Remember, Swintek is a sound investment.

*—Crystal front end receiver permits the use of multiple receivers as close as 50 KC in frequency to be operated contiguously without co-channel interference. Sideband interference and spurious noise are reduced to new lows.

"Hitchhiker" weighs only 15 1/2 ounces and is only 3/4" thick.

"Hitchhiker" mounts on side of CP-16A and other similar cameras.

Swintek Mark V, Mark IV and Mark III Cordless Microphone Systems.

"Hitchhiker" 12V pocket battery pack, auxiliary power cable and auxiliary 12V battery case.

The first successful heart transplant!

In 1969.

The operation was a complete success!

The old-fashioned mechanical film drive, heart of our world-famous Optical/Special Effects Printers, had its day . . . Mechanical gear trains, levers, motors, shafts, stop-motion clutches, solenoids, knuckle joints and the like, suddenly became obsolete in deference to new, sophisticated technology.

Our new space-age PhotoTron* all-electronic drive system was the new heart substituted in this major and radical surgery. It embodied computer-accurate stepping motors and solid-state electronic circuitry on snap-out cards for virtual elimination of equipment down-time. The operation was so successful that the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences presented it the 1973 Technical Award!

In addition, we provided our printers with unique automatic capabilities for zooms from 4X enlargement to 5X reduction, dissolves, logarithmic or linear for perfect fades/dissolves without overlap, flip-of-a-switch shutter programming over a predetermined fade count, and skip-frame programming that gives unlimited combinations at all speeds and with three heads simultaneously!

And there's more: the PhotoTron can be adapted easily to computer control or tape programming, and its power requirements are appropriate for international use.

The Model 2101, illustrated, is one of our two Award-winning patients; we also have several others. They're all in great demand . . . world-wide . . . in North America, South America, Europe, Asia and the Middle East. References available on request.

Faster Visual Presentation

Speed is decisive. For example in television. News items and world-wide communications are effective only if the current is truly presented. And yet, satellites and giant transmitters are not enough. The film material for illustrations and copies must be processed equally quickly to be newsworthy. Agfa-Gevaert, the European organisation in film manufacture, has such films.

The Olympic Games in Munich are proof. Most of the filmed events which were seen throughout the world, day and night, on the Television screens were covered on Agfa-Gevaert material.

Agfa-Gevaert offers the professional film makers what they need. Not just individual products, but a fully developed, progressive, easy to use film system. Negative and reversal films, optical and magnetic sound films, films for theatre and TV prints, filters and chemicals. And a service which such a programme requires. A service famous for its quality. Agfa-Gevaert – the professionals' partner.

How To Make Your Super 8 Equipment Run Properly.

If proper presentation of your Super 8 films is important to you, then your equipment must be in perfect condition. To learn how well your Super 8 system performs, you'll need an SMPTE Test Film.

There are two basic types of test film. The first, for projection performance — picture only, is the SMPTE 8mm Registration Test Film (50 or 100 ft). This film has no sound track. Its purpose is to measure and help you adjust the optical and mechanical performance of your projection equipment. The patterns are designed to measure and adjust aperture size and position, jump, weave, travel ghost, lens focus, and film buckling.

The second type is for Super 8 Magnetic Sound. There are four all together, each of which was recorded on full-coat magnetic stock with a Super 8mm .1667-in pitch, and contains a 24-mil record in the edge track position.

The four films now available are:

- 1. Azimuth Alignment Test Film (50 ft) which is used to align the azimuth position of the recording and reproducing heads on magnetic sound equipment.
- 2. Flutter Test Film (50 ft) to measure flutter introduced by sound reproducers, contains an original recording with extremely low flutter content.
- 3. Signal Level Test Film (50 ft) helps measure and balance the power level output from motion picture sound reproducers. The recorded level does not in itself indicate a program level, but provides a reproducible reference from which a recommended program level can be determined.
- 4. Multifrequency Test Film (100 ft) is used for testing and adjusting motion picture sound reproducers and projectors. It is calibrated, and correction factors are supplied with each film.
