As part of our work to celebrate next-generation storytellers, we're looking to highlight imaginative visual representations of progress across our industry — and the creative minds and talents of the artists behind those images. In other words, we're excited about making a great Progress Report cover and about recognizing industry colleagues for their creative talents."

Cover art designs can incorporate type, photography, illustrations, and/or graphics. Artists and designers can find examples of previous SMPTE Journal covers at www.smpte.org/journalcovercontest along with image specifications, submission instructions, and contest rules. By submitting a design, the creator grants SMPTE unlimited, worldwide, and perpetual royalty-free usage rights to that work. Entries must be original work, must respect any copyright or third-party rights, and must be accompanied by credits and sourcing links for any stock art or imagery incorporated into the final design.
